

Recycling Christmas Cards Helps Homeless Kids

VALERIE HOFF

Saint Jude's Ranch for children is home to more than 40 abused and abandoned children from babies to teenagers. For Nevada is a safe haven from pain and suffering, and a place to learn independent living skills they'll need as adults.

One of the ways they raise funds is by recycling greeting cards that are donated by people all over the U.S. The children take handmade cards that are sold in the Saint Jude's Ranch gift shop.

The program has been going on for 30 years, and has been a huge success. Metro Atlanta residents who want to donate much so that they only accept cards through February 28th. And it's not just Christmas cards, they accept other occasion cards to send cards to:

St. Jude's Ranch for Children, Recycled Card Program, 100 St. Jude's Street, Boulder City, NV 89005

For more information about the program go to www.stjudesranch.org

Terms of Service | EEO | Privacy Policy | Contact Us | About Us | Jobs | Advertiser Index

Copyright ©2008 11Alive.com. All rights reserved. Users of this site agree to the Terms of Service and Privacy Policy / Privacy Rights.